Re: Ensure 45V hydrogen tax credit does not support dirty energy

Dear Treasury Secretary Yellen,

I urge you to ensure the Treasury and the IRS's implementation of the 45V hydrogen tax credit does not devolve into a massive giveaway to dirty energy production.

If there is to be a role for clean hydrogen in our climate response, it must adhere to strict guardrails that ensure production doesn't increase our emissions or concentrate pollution in our communities.

Hydrogen producers must not be given free rein to repackage fossil fuels, methane gas from factory farms or landfills, woody biomass, or nuclear power as clean hydrogen.

To adhere to the statutory emissions requirements of hydrogen production, the final rule must update its lifecycle emissions rate for fossil gas and burning or gasifying wood to align with the best available science. The final rule must also ensure that producers of fossil-hydrogen cannot play a shell game with their emissions by purchasing offsets from factory farms or landfills. These industries are major sources of pollution in the surrounding communities, which are disproportionately rural, low wealth, and BIPOC communities. We cannot afford another perverse incentive for these industries based on outlandish climate claims, as it will only encourage the industry to further concentrate its pollution rather than minimize emissions at the source. Finally, the hydrogen credit must not exempt the toxic nuclear industry from the crucial three pillars of additionality, deliverability, and hourly time-matching that are rightfully applied to hydrogen production from electricity.

The hydrogen tax credit must not become a taxpayer subsidized greenwashing exercise for polluters attempting to repackage their dirty energy as clean hydrogen. Any allowance of loopholes for dirty energy or deviations from the best available science will create a significant risk of serious harm to public health, safety, and our climate.

I urge the Treasury and IRS to ensure that the final rule maintains the rigor of this draft rule, while also addressing loopholes allowing support for fossil fuels billed as clean energy.

Thank you,
